FROM THE FOUNDER

Ok! Let's end off the school year with a bang! Graduation, internships, and summer fun is the right way to set things off in a major way. I know back in the day I was walking around HU super hyped at the thoughts of what I was going to do once I graduated. I'm sure you are too. So, as usual, we are here to help you out and get you connected to the many opportunities that lie ahead for you.

In this issue we have gone directly to employers and they gave us critical information in regards to what they are looking for and what they have to offer you. We also checked out the SBN Awards and featured some of the All- American winners from this legendary event. Our always reliable computer whiz Reggie gives you tips on how to utilize our very own career site, which will connect you to thousands of employers! And last but not least we have the winners from our Hype Awards, hot photos, list of '08 hot spots and an interesting blog about love.

For those of you who are new "connect" babies or have not been "connected" yet, please check out the site and find out more about us. Once you get "connected" hit me up. I am eager to hear from you!

Hey! I got accepted to AAMU!! I am very excited!! I enjoyed my visit of the school, but what if it isn't right for me? It has my major and I love the area, but is that all I need? - AAMU Bound

The answer is largely based on you. If you feel comfortable with the size of the school, academic programs, and location then you are probably on your way to a successful college career! This is an important decision for you to make, so don't rush into it-look at other schools as well and take your time making a decision.

HBCU Question:

What is the best way to find out if I meet the qualifications to attend a school? - Confused

Go to the school's website and check out their Admission section. That section will tell you about the school's application process and what you will need to do.

Open your mind to many opportunities

By Jehan M. Bunch

Graduation is just around the corner, and now you are ready to leave your mark in the real world and want to reach newer and greater heights in a challenging career. The McGraw-Hill Companies can help you achieve those ambitions!

The McGraw-Hill Companies is a corporation that seeks those whose ideas will reach wide, whose impact will be felt far and who have a truly global perspective. With more than 280 offices in 40 countries, it's no wonder the company is in search of this type of talent.

McGraw-Hill provides essential information and insight to its customers that help them meet the enduring needs driving economic growth worldwide—the need for knowledge, the need for capital and the need for information transparency. A recognized leader for its broad array of employee benefits, resources and policies, the corporation is known for such leading brands as Standard & Poor's, McGraw-Hill Education, BusinessWeek and J.D. Power and Associates.

Marcus Armstead, vice president of strategic marketing for Standard & Poor's data and information business, describes his 9 1/2 years with the company as "enriching" and rewarding in every aspect. Armstead's department focuses on developing marketing strategies to promote and grow the business. "I have grown professionally and personally through challenging work, and I have achieved a great sense of satisfaction through helping the business grow," states Mr. Armstead.

Armstead, a member of Black Employees at McGraw-Hill (BEAM), states the company is a leader in diversity and attracts, develops and retains a broad base of talent that is representative of its global nature. "The company's diversity office focuses on leadership, education, training, community programs, and benefits," said Armstead. The company recognizes the importance of diversity in the workplace and encouraged the formation of grassroots-driven groups such as BEAM to mentor and retain the best talent.

McGraw-Hill is not only committed to diversity but also recognizes and rewards its employees through the "A- factor" —ability, accomplishment, and aspiration. Great effort is recognized, and hard work and new ideas are not only encouraged, but also rewarded. Armstead said that by taking on new and challenging roles and responsibilities, and by delivering superior results, employees earn increasingly larger roles at the company. Armstead, who is proof of the corporation's commitment to rewarding its employees' hard work and dedication, said the increased level of responsibility "gives me a sense of accomplishment."

Armstead gives this advice to students who want a challenging career: "Participate in internships while in college. This will give you real work experience and an opportunity to apply what you've learned in a practical way." He also states that for students without a lot of work experience, "Send the Human Resources department a great-looking cover letter that is well thought out, smartly written and highlights the skill sets you would bring to the company, so that you stand out."

The McGraw-Hill Companies is searching for open minds to drive its business to open, global markets. So, open your mind to the many opportunities with a career at McGraw-Hill, a company that embraces diverse perspectives, educational backgrounds, work experiences and personal interests.

WHY DO I LOVE THEE

Submitted by Aundrea Nance, Texas Southern University

how do i love thee, let me count thy ways
why do i love thee, on good even bad days all i can do is continue to try, but if the love isn't equal then it's like a thorn in my side, i sit and ponder holding back...and trying not to cry
only to keep my smile and my pride
one must know that
to love is to take a chance, whoever said it would be a guaranteed romance, so if you never loved before slow it down there is no rush, take your time to avoid the abdominal crush, lock it up and keep it safe for as long as you can, for a broken heart is terribly hard to repair fix or mend
even if one tries to bend over backwards,
there's no apology afterwards,
that can make it like it was,
only left with the motions emotions....of
why did i love

BLACK MEN - NOT AN ENDANGERED SPECIES

Submitted by Jonathan Carter, Hampton University

No single group of people seems to be the subject of more discussion and worry than Black men.

As a member of the aforementioned group, I must say that I'm flattered by all the attention. But nonetheless, we need to clear a few things up. There are a lot of misconceptions about us, and you've probably heard a few of them.

1. There are not more Black men in prison than in college. Over 2/3 of Black men under 30 have never committed a crime or been involved in the criminal justice system. The percentage of Black male college graduates is 16%, the highest percentage ever.

2. Women do not outnumber men in college two to one. The attendance rate of Black women and Black men is 18% and 16%, respectively.

3. Black men are not mostly unemployed, and take care of their families. The employment rate of African Americans is 92.8%, the highest since the end of slavery. Families headed by a single Black father are 16% less likely to live under the poverty line.

4. Black men are not financially inept. African-American financial assets are valued at over $1.4 trillion, or the 18th largest economy in the world. Of that, 42% is invested in real estate. Another 33% is comprised of investment vehicles (stocks, bonds, etc.). One out of every two owns their home.

5. Most young Black men are not into the “gangsta” culture. 42% of Black men ages 18-29 say that hip hop is a negative influence. 59% support prohibiting people under 18 from buying explicit music. 63% say that we are inaccurately represented in media and movies. Sales of hip hop albums decreased 21% this year.

It's time to know the truth. Do not be fooled by those who would profit from your ignorance.

We need to rethink the assumptions that we make about each other and ourselves. If these statistics surprise you, ask yourself why. Chances are, it's because you've never been told the truth.

These are the statistics you won't find in the headlines. I challenge you to share this with someone else today... they may be as refreshed and surprised as you are.

JUST BEING ME

Submitted by Yvonna Merriwether, Fisk University

I've finally reached womanhood
A Fiskite and it feels really good
At first I was timid and nervous
Of moving out and facing life on my own
Actually its not that bad
I've found strength that I never knew I had
A college freshman living in an apartment
Giving me millions of decisions to make
But as a young adult I have to choose what's best
And trust me that becomes the biggest test
Knowing what you can and can't handle
Don't turn into someone that you're not
See me I'm just being me
I love school, it's my top priority
I know that every night I can't party
I know what I got to do to be who I want to be
No more can my mother make decisions for me
So I'm going to keep it real
Yes, I am going to make mistakes
But that's just a part of me being me
And finding what it takes
To complete my dream

THE WORLD IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT

Joel Donelan, City Year Corps Member

I've been involved with community service since high school and college, when I attended Howard University in Washington, DC. Now that I've joined City Year Washington, DC, I continue to give back and I mentor and tutor 10th grade students in DC public high schools, providing facts about HIV/AIDS and helping give students the information they need to make healthy choices.

When I first began working in schools, I thought students wouldn't be receptive to information about the dangers of HIV/AIDS and how to prevent infection - but I quickly discovered students were hungry for knowledge. Using a curriculum approved by the Centers for Disease Control, I provide factual information that youth may not feel comfortable asking their parents, teachers, family members, or friends. I am able to help students by creating a safe space and a comfortable learning environment.

And the learning is about more than HIV/AIDS. At the end of the semester, I had one student in my 10th grade class approach me and say: "Wow, nobody has ever made me feel that all the things I had to say were important – like you did." I know that in a lot of school situations kids don't feel comfortable, or always have the chance to speak their mind. For me to be able to use my time in front of the class to encourage students like him to speak their opinion and share information, is a huge step forward in giving him the confidence needed to make the right decisions for a better future.

It is a powerful experience to be a City Year corps member because you are close in age to the students you are mentoring and their ears are open to hear your voice. We strive to show students that the decisions they make now will affect their future. Many kids in our class feel that if you go to a disadvantaged school or if you live in a particular neighborhood, then you won't be able to choose your future or reach for the stars.

We are able to empower students and give them the confidence that if you make smart decisions, you can fulfill your dreams.

City Year gave me the opportunity to touch so many people's lives and I am proud to be part of a culture committed to making a positive difference in the community. I encourage anyone to serve, because when you serve your community, the community gives back to you. The world is what you make it – you must be the change you wish to see in the world.

You can make a difference.

In neighborhoods.
In schools.
In classrooms.

■ WHAT IS CITY YEAR?

City Year is a non-profit organization that unites young people of all backgrounds for a year of full-time service, giving them the skills and opportunities to change the world.

■ WHAT WILL YOU DO?

CREATING & CELEBRATING LEGENDS

By Dawn Dickson

Black college football stars past and present gathered at the Marriott Marquis hotel in Atlanta, Georgia for the 34th Annual SBN Sports Black College All-American (BCAA) Football Banquet on February 16, 2008. The upscale event, appropriately themed "Creating and Celebrating Legends," recognized the 24 best players in Black College Football. The Black College All-American Awards Weekend (BCAA) is presented by SBN Sports Network, a division of the American Urban Radio Networks (AURN) to recognize and celebrate the academic and athletic achievements of student athletes from the nation's Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

JOBS, JOBS, JOBS, AND MO' JOBS

By Reginald Culpepper

Well, it's that time of year when finals are taken, grades are turned in, and all you can do is sit, sweat, and pray that you did enough to pass and graduate on time. Are you sure you passed? Are you sure you didn't have a massive brain freeze on that last test or quiz? Will your final test determine whether you graduate or not? Well, regardless of the outcome, I have faith that you will get that passing grade and will be ready to start your new job.

What? A job? You've looked for a job to start after graduation, right? Lucky for you, HBCUConnect.com does not only serve as a social networking community for HBCU peers, we also hold the largest job board dedicated to HBCU student interns, and HBCU alumni. We have over 3,000 employers who specifically expressed interest in recruiting diverse talent at the HBCUs, although many have been actively recruiting at individual HBCUs, they have found our site to be the best at reaching all the HBCUs via one site - HBCUConnect.com.

Simply click on our Career Center link, or go to <http://www.hbcucareercenter.com> or <http://jobs.hbcuconnect.com> and start your search. We have Internships for those with a few more years left of their college career. There are plenty of jobs out there just waiting for new blood to innovate their organization. You just have to take the first step and apply.

Auburn University, Virginia Tech University, U.S. Navy, Arrow Electronics, City Year, McGraw-Hill, Reuters, Verizon, American Cancer Society, and the U.S. Department of State are just a small portion of the employer pool we have - ready for you to dive into.

So, if you have to sweat, just sweat for that passing grade on your finals and not whether or not you will have a job when you get out. Dive in to the job pool at HBCUConnect.com - Get Connected.

DON'T JUST CHANGE THE WORLD. GO BEYOND IT.

WHAT CAN YOU SEE from the vantage point of the world's largest satellite builder? The deepest reaches of space and the smallest changes in climate.
